FOREWORD

I have been asked by Prof. Mrs. R. Mahapatra, Ph.D. to write a foreward for her book on Shree Vaishnavism in North India.

Shree Vaishnavism was unknown in North India upto the 19th century except in some pockets of Orissa, Bengal and United Province on the link routes between south and north India. But coming to the 20th century we find that it has spread out in many of the important cetnres of north India mainly due to efforts of three persons - Sri Rangadesika Swami, Sri Anantachari Swami, both from Kanchipuram, and Tridandi Viswakasena Swami of Buxar, Bihar. Numerous Shree Vaishnavas can now be found through out north India and many Shree Vaishnava literatures are being published in north Indian languages. But unfortunately no attempt has yet been made to trace out the historical aspect of such spread of Shree Vaishnav bhakti movement in north India.

In this booklet by Mrs. Mahapatra an attempt has been made in this respect and she has nicely pointed out the main events and workforce behind such movement leading to the present day state of affairs of Shree Vaishnavism in north India. It would act as a guideline and source of inspiration to those who in future will make an attempt to search out the full history of the Shree Vaishnava bhakti movement from the records scattered in different parts of north India. This book has long been waited for.

I wish all success and good will for the book and to the Author.

PREFACE

National integration is a topic discussed today at all levels, in the interest of the country's stability and progress. If it has been possible so far, for a multi lingual, multicultural, country like ours, to boast of a common Indian heritage that is because of the 'give and take' that has been going on in every field of achievement, be it religion, philosophy, literature or fine arts.

It was possible for the great Ramanuja to lit up the torch of Bhakti in the hearts of the people across all the regional and linguistic boundaries, because he synthesised the Vedic Sanskritic tradition of the north with the Tamil literary traditions and the personal and emotionlly powerful 'Bhakti' of the Alwars.

Every other Bhakti movement which started in various other regions like Maharashtra, Gujarat, Rajasthan, U. P., Bengal and Assam in later periods owed something to the Tamil Bhakti movement, binding the people of India with the chord of Bhakti.

Now thousand years after Ramanuja, after his Sri Vaisnavism has given place to various others shades of Vaishnavism in the North, an interesting phenomenon is being noticed.

The Vaishnava Bhakti movement of the Alwars is being revived all over North India in the path shown by Ramanuja.

Two most interesting aspects of this revival are (1) that it is carried on by non Tamils in the non Tamil regions, resulting in thousands and thousands of non Tamils adapting Sri Vaishnavism (2) For the first time in known history the literature of a Dravidian language, namely, Tamil, has become such an intimate part of a religious movement in which non Tamils are involved. For the first time the Tamil Vaishnava literature has been translated into so many north Indian languages like Hindi, Bengali, Nepali, Gujarati etc , by non Tamils.

This movement has its impact on the social cultural and literary activities of people of the various regions also.

In one of my frequent visits to the Jagannath Temple at Puri, (Orissa), I noticed that the Lakshmi Temple inside the temple complex was devoted as it were to Sri Vaishnavism with the large life size portrayals of Ramanuja and Satagopa Alwar with the other Alwars and Acharyas in the background. This led me to the Sri Vaishnava Mathas in Puri which puzzled me all the more because insulated from the local atmosphere, they were like live tableaux of the orthodox religious life of the Sri Vaishnavas of Tamilnadu, bodily lifted, with one striking difference that the inmates knew not Tamil, though they chanted Tamil hymns in real earnest.

Another chance gift of an old copy of the Bengali translation-with Tamil transliteration of Satagopa Alwar's Tiruvāymozhi — titled 'Sahasra Geeti' by Sri Yatindra Ramanujacharya printed at Khardah (10 miles from Calcutta) kindled my curiosity to no end. I was on the track of Swami Yatindra Ramanujacharya, convinced that there should be more to it than this single book. Finally I got the lead from Smt. Henna Basu and I reached my destination on the Vijaya Dasmi day of 1987 after a long search. Swamiji was the founder of the Sri Vaishnava Ashram, Sri Balram Dharma Sopaṇ.

It is there at Sri Balram Dharma Sopaṇ, I met Swami Sri Nrisingha Ramanuja Das, who is running the ashram and the Lakshminarayan temple after Swamijis' demise in 1975. Another surprise waited for me at Khardah - the Bengal chapter of the Sri Vaishnava culture. The Alwars of Kaveri banks were here again on the banks of the Ganges.

Thanks to Swami Sri Nrsingha Das, I got all the answers I was searching for. These were not any isolated or unconnected homages to Ramanuja or Tamilnadu. But these were parts of the same, chain-of the great Sri Vaishnava movement being revived now. I felt excited beyond words, that I have the privilege of witnessing history, history right when it is happening. This is a movement, that is being revived after a thousand years. And then for five years I went about visiting the different places involved in this movement. Brindavan, Banares Kathmandu (Nepal), Dwaraka, Ahmedabad, Somnath, Bombay, Jaipur, Rishikes, etc etc. whenever I could, on a personal or family trip.

My trip to the Brindavan temple was most gratifying. The head of the Govardhan Pith extended his hospitality by giving me access to the library documents of the largest Sri Vaishnava temple in north India. I express my heart felt thanks to him.

What overwhelmed me more, was the fact that the devoted religious scholars in every region had their own mother tongue version of the Tamil Vaishnava literatures. Bengali topped the list, almost 60 books by one single author! — by the great Swami Yatindra Ramanuja Charya, Hindi being the next in the list. But while Sri Balaram Dharma Sopan - the Bengali Sri Vaishnava Ashram- is its only type, in the Hindi belt one finds a very active scenerio. Scores of temples have been built within the past 50 years,

The Vaikuntanath Temple at Kalikrishna Tagore Street - Calcutta, by the Bangur House, the Sri Venkateswar Temple at Panaswadi Bombay, and the one at Vasant Vihar Delhi, are some in the capitals. Bihar seems to have the widest network of Sri Vaishnava temples, Mathas and other religious centres, Nepal is picking up. Rajasthan has quite a number of temples. Benaras has an entire Ramanuja Vibhag in the Sampurnanand Sanskrit University.

But in the absence of any research assistance I had great constraints, financial as well as personnel. I could not travel alone to many places, nor did I have the access to many individuals, who could provide information as to when and by whom a temple was built. It will always remain a matter of regret to me that I could not collect the names of the patrons who helped building so many temples, big and small, established schools, and centres of Sri Vaishnava research, provided support to all the literary output etc. etc. A movement such as this with its social, religious and literary dimensions could not have achieved so much without their financial patronage. They certainly deserved a word of thanks.

I am happy to have witnessed the linguistic and cultural integration that Ramanuja dreamt, brought about even within this 100 years. Among those who have been exposed to this new wave, whether Tamils or non Tamils there are greater understanding and appreciation of each others' language, literature and culture. There is mutual respect born of this coming together, a common bond, a sense of belonging. No more do they go to places just as a sightseers but there is a meaning in it, a sense of fulfilment, they feel it is part of their own, whether good or bad. Is not this national integration?

My humblest thanks to Swami Sri Nrisingha Das, of Sri Balaram Dharma Sopan, for all this. It has been a wonderful journey for me.

நுழை வாயில்

— ரங்கநாயகி மகாபாத்ரா

தமிழ் நாட்டில் இடைக்காலத்தில் தோன்றிய பக்தி இயக்கங்கள் இந்திய நாடு முழுவதிலும் பல பக்தி இயக்கங்களைத் தோற்றுவித்தன என்று படித்திருக்கிறோம். ஆழ்வார்களின் தமிழ்ப்பாசரங்களின் வழி வேதப் பொருளை விளக்கிய ஸ்ரீ ராமானுஜர் அவற்றை வட இந்தியாவிலும் அறிமுகப்படுத்தினார் என்று அறிந்திருக்கிறோம். ஆனால் நம் தமிழ்மொழி, தமிழிலக்கியம் ஆகியவற்றை அறியும் ஆர்வமோ, தேவையோ, சூழ்நிலையோ தென்னகத்திற்கு வெளியே எப்போதாவது இருந்திருக்கிறதா என்பது என் நெடுநாளைய ஐயம். அதோடு, வடமொழிக்குள்ளே அத்தனை பெருமைகளுக்குரிய நம் தெய்வத்தமிழைக் கற்கும் ஆர்வமே பிற இந்தியருக்கு இல்லையேர என்ற ஏக்கமும் உண்டு.

முப்பது ஆண்டுகளுக்கு முன் ஓரிசாவில் பூரி ஜகந்நாதர் கோவிலுக்குப் பக்கத்தில் கூட்டங்கூட்டமாக வைஷ்ணவர்களைக் கண்ட போது அவர்களுடைய திருமண்காப்பும், கோலமும் தமிழகத்தை நினைவு படுத்த, அருகில் சென்றேன். அவர்கள் இந்தி பேசுபவர்கள். தமிழே தெரியாதவர்கள் என்றுணர்ந்தேன்.

அதற்குச் சில ஆண்டுகளுக்குப் பிறகு பூரியில் ஜகந்நாதர் கோவிலில் லட்சுமி கோவில் மண்டபம் முழுவதிலும் ராமானுஜர், ஆழ்வார்கள், ஆகியோரின் அழகான கோவிலங்கள் நிறைந்திருப்பதைக் கண்டு பெரு வியப்பும் மகிழ்ச்சியும் அடைந்தேன். கோவிலுக்கு எதிரேயுள்ள எம்பார் மடத்திலோ

ராமானுஜருக்கும், நம்மாழ்வாருக்கும் தமிழகக் கோயில் போல வழிபாடு நடப்பது கண்டு இன்னும் வியப்பு. இன்னும் சில ஸ்ரீ வைணவ மடங்களும் இருப்பதறிந்து பூரி செல்லும் போதெல்லாம் செய்தி திரட்டத் தொடங்குகிறேன்.

ஜீயர் சுவாமி மடத்தில் (கிரிசுவாமி மடமென்றும் பெயர்). உத்தரப் பிரதேசத்தைச் சேர்ந்த இளம்பிள்ளைகள் துழாய்மாலைகள் கட்டும் காட்சியும், 'பல்லாண்டு, பல்லாண்டு', என்று பாடும் மழலைத் தமிழும் 'சித்தம் சிறுகாலே என்று ஆன்டாள் பாசுரத்தைப் பெருவையுடன் ஓதும் மடத்துத் தலைவரின் திருந்தாத தமிழும் நெஞ்சைக் குளிர்விக்கின்றன. தமிழறியாத அவர்கள். ஆழ்வார்களின் அடிபணிந்து நெக்குருகி'ப் பாடும் தமிழ்ப் பாசுரங்கள் என் நெடுநாள் ஏக்கத்தைத் தணிக்கின்றன. இந்த ளிந்தை நிகழ்ந்த விதத்தை அறிய முனைகிறேன்.

1985ல் ஒருநாள். என் மதிப்பிற்குரிய டாக்டர் திருமதி. விஜயா தாஸ் (ஜாதவ்பூர் பல்கலைக்கழகத் தமிழாசிரியை) அவர்கள் ஒரு பழைய வங்காளி நூலைத் தருகிறார்கள். நம்மாழ்வார் திருவாய்மொழியின். வங்கமொழி பெயர்ப்பு ! மிக விரிவான உரை, விளக் கத்தோடும் தமிழ் ஒலி பெயர்ப்போடும் அமைந்த அந்நூலைப் பற்றி வேறு விவரங்கள் தெரியாமல் திகைப்பு. கல்கத்தாவிலிருந்து பத்துமைல் தொலைவில் (Khardah) - கர்தா கிராமத்தில் சுமார் 50 ஆண்டுகளுக்கு முன் அந்நூல் அச்சிடப்பட்டதை அறிந்து துப்புத்துலக்கல் தொடங்குகிறது. 1987-ம் ஆண்டு விஜயதசமியன்று புறப்பட்டு, கிடைத்த விவரங்களின் இழைகளைத் தொடர்ந்து சென்று இருட்டும் நேரத்தில் கங்கைக் கரையை அடைகிறேன். யாருமற்ற அந்தப் பாதையிலே வழிதவறி வந்துவிட்ட எனக்குச் சில இளைஞர்கள் வழி காட்டுகிறார்கள். தேடிவந்த லட்சுமிநாராயணனின் கோயில்

தைக் கண்ட அன்று ஏற்பட்ட பரவசத்தை வருணிக்க இய
லாது.

சிறிய கோயில் தான். ஆனால் அதைக் கட்டிய ஆசாரிய
யதீந்திர ராமானுஜ தாசர் மிகப் பெரியவர், ரவீந்திர நாத
டாகுர், வங்காளத்தின் முதலமைச்சர் ஆகியோரின் குடும்ப.
மருத்துவராக இருந்தவர். ஏராளமாகப் பொருள் தந்த தம்
தொழிலைத் துறந்து ஸ்ரீ வைணவத் துறவியாகித் திருச்சி
திருவரங்கத்தில் இரண்டாண்டுகள் தங்கி முறையே தமிழும்
ஸ்ரீ வைணவமும் கற்றுத் தேர்ந்து கல்கத்தா திரும்பியதும்
தம் பொருள் அனைத்தையும் செலவிட்டுக் கோயில் கட்டி, ஆசிரமமும், துழாய் வணமும் இலவச மருத்துவ மனையும்
அமைத்து ஆழ்வார்களைக் கங்கைக் கரையில் கோயிலில்
அமர்த்தி எஞ்சிய நாளெல்லாம் இறைப் பணியில் செலவிடு
கிறார். தமிழ், வடமொழியிலுள்ள ஸ்ரீ வைணவப் பக்தி இலக்
கியங்கள் அனைத்தையும் வங்காளியில் மொழிபெயர்க்
கிறார். பரேதன் கங்கையைக் கொணர்ந்த தவம் போன்றது
இவரது சாதனை.

1975ல் அவர் மறைவிற்குப் பிறகு ஆசிரமப் பொறுப் பேற்று
அவர் பணிகளைத் தொடரும் திரு நரசிங்க ராமானுஜ தாச
ரைத் தேடியே நான் வந்திருக்கிறேன். இருவரும் துறவி,
கல்லூரிப் பேராசிரியராகப் பணி புரிந்து வந்தவர் — அதைத்
துறந்து வைணவப் பணியில் தம்மை ஆட்படுத்திக் கொண்
டவர். ஆழ்வார்களின், ஆச்சாரியார்களின் தமிழ்ச் செல்
வத்தை, உரைப் பெருமையை யெல்லாம் வங்கமொழிப்
படுத்தித் தெய்வத் தமிழுக்கு ஏற்றம் தந்துள்ள வைணவ
பக்தியைக் கண்டு வியக்கிறேன். வைணவத்தால் இந்திய
மொழிகளைப், பண்பாட்டை, ஒருங்கிணைக்கும் ராமானுஜ
ரின் ஒருமைப் பாட்டுப் பணியைக் கண்டு பிரமிக்கிறேன்.

புரியாமலிருந்த புதிர்கள் விளக்கம் பெறுகின்றன, தனித் தனியாக நிற்கும் கண்ணிகள் ஒன்று சேருகின்றன, ஒரிசா வின் எம்பார் மடமும் வங்காளத்தில் கர்தா கிராமத்து ஸ்ரீ பலராம் தர்ம சோபான ஆசிரமும் தொடர்பற்ற நிகழ்ச்சித் துண்டுகளல்ல.

மீண்டும் தமிழ் வைணவ பக்தி இயக்கம் மறுமலர்ச்சிபெற்றுக் கிளைத்து வருகிறது. வரலாறு உருவாவதை அப்பொழுதே உணர்ந்து, அருகிலிருந்து காணும் பெருவாய்ப்பு பெற்றுள்ளதை உணர்ந்து உள்ளம சிலிர்க்கிறது, அன்றிலிருந்து செய்தித் துணுக்குகள் தாமாக வந்து தொடர்பமைக்கின்றன. பயணம் தொடர்கிறது. ஆய்விற்கான உதவியேதும் எட்டகத நிலையில் சொந்த முறையில் கிடைத்த வாய்ப்புகளைப் பயன் படுத்திக் கொண்டு காசி, நேபாளம், பிருந்தாவனம், துவாரகை என்று இயக்கத்தின் வேர்களைத் தொடர்ந்து செல்கிறேன்.

வட இந்தியாவில் ஸ்ரீ வைணவத்தின் சுவடுகள் தேய்ந்து மறைந்து விட்ட நிலையில் ராமானுஜருக்கு ஆயிரம் ஆண்டு களுக்குப் பிறகு அது மீண்டும் தழைப்பது எவ்வாறு?

19 நூற்றாண்டு இறுதியில் மீண்டும் ராமானுஜரின் அவதாரமாக ஸ்ரீ பெரும்புதூரின் அருகில் பிறந்து, கோவர்த்தனகிரியில் ஆசாரியராக முதிர்ந்து பிருந்தாவனத்தில் நிலைத்து வட இந்தியர்களுக்கு ஸ்ரீ வைணவ சமயத்தை மட்டுமின்றி ஆழ்வார்களின், ஆசாரியர்களின் தமிழ் இலக்கியத்தையும் தருகிறார் இந்தத் தமிழர் - இந்திய வரலாற்றிலேயே முதன் முறையாக இந்தச் சாதனையைப் புரிந்தவர் ஸ்ரீரங்கதேசிகர் (1810-1874), அவருடைய மாணாக்கர்களாக உருவான வெவ்வேறு மாநிலத்துச் சீடர்கள் உத்தரப் பிரதேசத்திலும், பஞ்சாபிலும், பிகாரிலும், வங்காளத்திலும் விழுதுகளாக ஊன்றித் தம் தம் மொழிகளில் ஆழ்வார் அமுதத்தைப்

பொழி கிறார்கள். ஊர் ஊராகக் கோயில் கட்டி ரங்கநாதனை, வெங்கடேசப் பெருமானை ஆழ்வார்களின் பாமாலைகளால் அழகு படுத்துகிறார்கள். தவ்விய 'தேசங்களை' முற்றிலும் தமிழகத்துப் பாணியில் அமைத்துத் தமிழர்களுையே கொண்டு முறையான வழிபாடு நடத்துகிறார்கள். பூகாரில் மட்டுமே 360 நிலையங்கள் — கோவில்களால் மடங்களால், ஸ்ரீ வைணவம் வளர்க்கப் படுகிறதென்றால், இமாசப் பிசதேசத்திலும், ஹரியானாவிலும், நேபாளத்திலும் புதிய புதிய ராமானுஜ கூடங்கள், தோன்றிய வண்ணம் உள்ளனவென்றால் இதைப் பக்தி இயக்கத்தின் மறுமலர்ச்சி ஒன்று உறுதியாகக் கூறலாம். ஆயிரக்கணக்கான கட்டுரைகள், நூற்றுக்கணக்கான நூல்கள் இந்தியிலும் வங்காளியிலும் — சமய ஆராய்ச்சியாக, விளக்கமாக, ஆழ்வார்கள் புகழ் பரப்புகின்றன. இவற்றின் ஆசிரியர்கள் அனைவரும் தமிழரல்லாத பிறமொழியாளர்கள். தமிழ்ப் பக்தி இலக்கியக் கோயிலைப் பிற மொழியாளர் களுக்குத் திறந்து விட ஸ்ரீ ரங்கதேசிக சுவாமிகள் செய்த வழி, அத்தனையையும் வட மொழியில் பெயர்த்ததே யாகும்— தமிழ், மணிப்பிரவாளம் ஆகிய இரண்டிலிருந்தும் அத்தனையையும் வட மொழியில் பெயர்த்தது அவரது சாதனைகளில் ஒன்று தான். அவற்றை உரிய முறையில் பயிற்று வித்து அவற்றோடு தமிழ்ப் பண்பாட்டையும் வட நாட்டு மண்ணில் பதிய வைத்தது மற்றுமொன்று. தமிழர் களைக் கண்டால் அரங்கப் பெருமானைக் கண்டதாக எண்ணிக் கரங்குவித்து உள்ளம் நெகிழுமளவு வட இந்திய வைணவர்களிடையே தமிழ்நாட்டிற்குத் தென்னெனத்திற்கு ஏற்றமளித்தது இன்னுமொன்று.

என்னிடமிருந்தது ஒரு வைணவக் கோயிலின் தெருப் பெயர் மட்டுமே. பத்திஸ் புதலியென்ற பெயர் மட்டுமே துணையாக, ஒரு மணி நேரம் அலைந்து நம்பிக்கையற்றுத் திரும்பி வரும் நிலையில் ஒரு சிறு கோவிலின் உச்சி தெரிந்தது. கோபுரம் கூட இல்லை. சங்க சக்கரச் சின்னங்கள் மட்டுமே. தவம் பலித்தது. சூடிக் கொடுத்த கடர்க் கொடியோடு ஸ்ரீ வேணுகோபாலப் பெருமானை மடத்தலைவர் — நேபாளி ஆசாரியர் சுதர்சனாசாரியர் ஆராதனை செய்து கொண்டிருக்கிறார். அவர் தோற்றமும் தமிழர் போலவே. ரங்கநாயகி என்ற என் பெயரே அவர் கண்களில் நீர்மல்கச் செய்கிறது. ஸ்ரீ ரங்க தரிசனமே பெற்றதாக மகிழ்கிறார். நேபாளி மொழியில் அச்சிட்ட திருப்பாவை, உரை, வியாக்கியானம். வேணுகோபாலப் பெருமானின் புகைப்படம். என்று தேடிச் சென்ற நிதியெல்லாம் கிடைக்கிறது. ஆண்டுதோறும் நேபாளத்தில் நடக்கும் ஸ்ரீ வைணவ மகாநாட்டுக்கு அழைப்புத் தருகிறார்.

ஆண்டு முழுவதும் உழைத்துச் சிறுபொருள் சேர்த்து அதைக் கொண்டு பிருந்தாவனத்து ரங்கமன்னாரையும் கோதையையும் தரிசித்துக் கொண்டு கோவில் வாசலிலேயே இரண்டு மாதத்தைக் கழித்து விட்டுக்கைப் பொருள் தீர்த்தும் ஊர் திரும்ப இருக்கும் ஏழை நேபாளிக் குடியானவன் 'ரங்க மன்னாரே உன்னைத் திரும்பவும் எப்போது சேவிப்பேன்?' என்று அழுது அரற்றிக் கொண்டிருந்ததைக் கண்ட போது பக்தி இயக்கம் என்பதைப் புரிந்து கொண்டேன், ராமேசுவரத்திற்கும் பாலாஜி (திருப்பதி) கோயிலுக்கும், ஸ்ரீ ரங்கத்திற்கும் அழுக்குப் படிந்த உடைகளோடு குழந்தை குட்டிகளோடு, அலுமினியப் பாத்திரங்களோடு ரும்பல் கும்பலாக வந்து மழையிலிம் வெய்யிலும் காய்ந்து ரங்கநாதனை, ஈசுவரனைத் தரிசிப்பதற் கென்றே அறுவடைப் பணம் அத்தனையும் செலவழிக்கும் இந்த ஏழைகளின் உள்ளத்திலே பக்திச் சுடர்

அணையாமல் இச்சிறு கோயில்களில் நடக்கும் பக்திச் சுவை சொட்டும் சொற்பொழிவுகள், பஜனைகள், ஆகியவை உதவுகின்றன.

பிருந்தாவனத்தில் வட இந்தியாவிலேயே மிகப் பெரிய, திருமாலின் நிவ்வியதேசமாக அமைந்த ரங்கமன்னார் கோவிலில் விருந்தினர் விடுதியில் மூன்று நாட்கள் தங்கிக், கோவில் நூலகத்திலிருந்து குறிப்புகள் எடுத்த போது ஏற்பட்ட அனுபவங்கள் என்றும் மறக்க முடியாதவை. ஸ்ரீ ரங்கதேசிக சுவாமிகளின் வழித் தோன்றல், அவருடைய கொள்ளுப் பேரர் ஸ்ரீ ரங்காச்சாரி (மஹாராஜ் என்று அழைக்கப் படுபவர்)—தற்போதைய கோவர்த்தன மடத்துப் பட்டத் தலைவர்—தம் இல்லத்திலேயே உணவளித்து அருள் செய்தார். நூலகத்திலிருந்து அனைத்து உதவியையும் அவரே செய்து கொடுத்தார். எல்லாவற்றிற்கும் மேலாக, 'பெரிய சுவாமிகள்' எனப் பணிவிடன் அவரழைக்கும் மகாசாமியர், ஸ்ரீ ரங்கதேசிக சுவாமிகள் அமர்ந்து நம் தமிழன்னையை வட இந்தியாவில் அரியாசனம் ஏற்றிய வரலாற்றுப் புனிதம் படைத்ததிருக் கோயிலில் அவரது திருவறையில் என்னையும் அமர வைத்தார். அந்தப் பரவசம், அந்தச் சூழ்நிலை, இன்றும் அங்கே தமிழ் வைணவக் குரவர்களின் பணி தென்னகத்திலும் காண, இயலாத பயபக்தியோடு தொடரும் காட்சி, எல்லாமாக என்னை ஒரு புதிய உலகிற்கே அழைத்துச் சென்றன. அதை 'ராமானுஜ தரிசனம்' என்றே கூறலாம்.

அவர் இல்லத்திலே எடுபிடி வேலை செய்யும் ஒரு நேபாளி மூதாட்டி— எழுத்தறிவற்றவள்— பத்து வயதில் நேபாளத்தில் தீட்சை பெற்று எத்தனா வளியாக இருந்தவள் ரங்கநாயகி என்ற பெயர் பெற்றுருக்கிறாள். அவளுடைய குருவின் பெயரைக் கேட்கல் ஸ்ரீமத் நாராயணனிலிருந்து தொடங்கித் தனக்குத் தீட்சை செய்த ஆசாரியர் வரை குரு பரம்பராப் பிராவம் சொல்லி நிறுத்துவாள். எத்தனை முறை

கேட்டாலும் முழுவதும் செல்லியே திருவாள். சமயம் பண் பாட்டை உருவாக்கும் வரலாற்றையே நேரில் கண்டேன்.

துவாரகையிலிருந்து மற்றொரு பயணம், குஜராத்தில் அகமதாபாத்தில், பல சிறு ஸ்ரீ வைணவக் கோயில்கள், சோம நாத புரத்தில் அழகு கொஞ்சும் ஸ்ரீநிவாசப் பெருமாள் சன்னிதியில் திருப்பல்லாண்டை முழங்கிக் கொண்டிருக்கும் 70 வயது குஜராத்திப் பெரியவர். ஜெய்ப் பூரில் தான் லட்கமி வெங்கடேசப் பெருமானுக்கு எத்தனை கோயில்கள் ! எத்தனையோ தலைமுறைகளாகக் கோயில் பணிசெய்ய வந்து குடியேறிய, தமிழ் பேசத் தெரியாத தமிழர்கள். ஆனால் அவர்கள் பணியில் பக்தியும் ஆர்வமும் குன்றவில்லை. அவ்வப் போது தமிழகத்துக்கு வந்து புத்துணர்வு பெற்றுப் போகிறார்கள் கோயில்களின் விழாக்கள், புண்ணிய தினங்கள் எதையும் கொண்டாடாமல் விடுவதில்லை.

ஸ்ரீ ரங்கதேசிகர் போன்று வட இந்தியாவில் ஸ்ரீ வைணவம் பரப்பிய மற்றொரு மகான் ஸ்ரீ அனந்தா சாரியார் அவர்கள். காஞ்சி பிரதீவாதி பயங்கரம் அண்ணங்காரசாரியார் மடத் தலைவரான இவர் மகாராஷ்டிரம், ராஜஸ்தானம், மத்தியப் பிரதேசம் போன்ற இடங்களிலெல்லாம் ஸ்ரீ வைணவக் கோவில்கள் கட்டுவித்துப் பல்லாயிரக் கணக்கான வட இந்தியர்களுக்கு வைணவ தீட்சை தந்து, ஒளிகாட்டியவர். இவருடைய அறிவொளியும் பக்தி நெறியும் பல சிற்றரசர் வள்ளல்களை இவர் பணியிலாழ்த்தின. அஜ்மீரில் புஷ்கரத்திலுள்ள பெருமாள் கோயில் இவர் கட்டுவித்ததே இவருக்குப் பிறகு இவரது பேரர் அனந்தாசாரியர் அவர்களோ இன்றைய வட இந்திய ஸ்ரீ வைணவ சமயத் தலைவர்க்கு வழிபடும் தெய்வமே ஆவர், பம்பாயில் பணை வாடியில் வெங்கடேசப் பெருமானுக்கு முறைப்படித் தீவ்யதேசம் அமைத்து மிகச் சிறப்பாக இன்னொரு திருப்பதிபோல், ஸ்ரீ வைணவ வழிபகடுகள் நடைபெறச் செய்தார். ராஜஸ்தா

னத்தில் ரோல், முண்ட்வா, மௌலாஸர் போன்ற பல இடங்களிலும் ஸோமானிகள் என்ற வணிகப் பெருவள்ளல்களின் உதவியால் பெருமாள் திருக் கோயில்களும், கல்வி, மருத்துவ அறிவிலையங்களும், வைணவ சமய ஆராய்ச்சி நிலையங்களும் நிறுவியுள்ளார். ஸ்ரீ அநந்தாசாரிய சுவாமிகள் தற்போது காஞ்சிபிரதிவாதி பயங்கர மடத் ததிபதியான ஸ்ரீ ஸ்ரீநிவாச சாரியாருடைய பாட்டனார் ஆவார். வடக்கு, தெற்கு, போன்ற வேற்றுமையில்லாமல் துவாரகை முதல் நேபாளம் வரை, இமயம் முதல் குமரிவரையுள்ள அத்தனை வைணவ நிறுவனங்களும் பிரதிவாதி பயங்கரம் மடத்தலைவரைக் கண்ட தெய்வமாக, முடிகண்டா மன்னராகவே மதித்து மரியாதை செய்கின்றன. பிரந்தாவனத்தில் தங்கியிருந்தபோது இதையும் காணும் வாய்ப்பு கிடைத்தது.

மொழிகடந்து நில எல்லை கடந்து இந்திய வைணவம் பண்பாட்டளவிலும் அனைவராயும் இணைத்துள்ளது. காழ்ப்புணர்ச்சி இல்லாமல் சமயநெறி வாயிலாகத் தனி மனித வாழ்க்கை நெறியும் தூய்மைப்பட இந்நிறுவனங்கள் இயன்றவரை முயல்கின்றன.

அரசியல் நோக்கங்களோ, விளம்பரக் கவர்ச்சிகளோ இல்லாமல் பக்தி, நம்பிக்கை இரண்டின் அடிப்படையிலேயே வளர்ந்து வரும் இப்பக்தி இயக்கத்திற்குத் தங்கள் பொருளால் ஆதரவால், துணை செய்யும் வள்ளல்கள் பற்றிய செய்தி, கோயில்கள் அமைந்த பின்னணிகள், ஆகியவற்றை அறிய மிக முயன்றேன். ஆனால் எந்த நிதியுதவியும் ஆய்வுத் துணையும் இல்லாமல் தனிப்படவே செய்தி திரட்டவேண்டியிருந்த நிலையில் என்னால் பல இடங்களுக்குச் செல்ல இயலவில்லை. முக்கியமாகப் பீகாரில் போக்குவரத்து வசதிகள் கூட செம்மையாக இல்லாத இடங்களில் — (சில இடங்களில் யானை மீது கூடப் போக வேண்டி வரும்) கள ஆய்வு

நம் கண் முன்னே ஒரு பக்தி இயக்கமே வளர்கிறது என்ற துடிப்பும், அதன் வளர்ச்சியை உள்ளபடி இன்றே இப்போதே பதிவு செய்யாவிட்டால் பல 'அற்புதங்கள்' வந்து படிந்து வரலாற்றை, உண்மையை அறிவது பிற்காலத்தில் கடினமாகும் என்ற கவலையும் உந்த ஓர் ஆய்வுத்திட்டமாக இதை உயர் ஆய்வுமையங்கள் முன் வைத்தேன். பயன் கிட்டவில்லை, தமிழ் தெற்கைத் தாண்டி இந்தியப் பொதுச் சொத்தானது வரலாற்றுப் பெருமை பெற்ற நிகழ்ச்சியாகத் தோன்றவில்லை போலும் ! அனைத்து மொழிகளையும் மாநிலங்களையும் இயற்கையாக ஆரவாரமின்றிப் பக்தியால் ஒன்று சேர்த்த தேசிய ஒருமைப் பாடும் பெரிதில்லை போலும் !

The contribution of the Tamils to the Indianness of our country deserves special attention, particularly in these days, when our national integration demands a closer look into its rich history.

From times immemorial India has been as multilingual and multi ethnic as it is today. But inter regional communication in matters of academics, religion or philosophy does not seem to have been a problem thanks to link languages like Sanskrit and Prakrit which were also serving as the cultural media helping the development of a common Indian Culture for over 2500 years.

The Bhakti Movements of the South, particularly of Tamil Nadu, played a major role in bringing together the regions of this vast country under one religious fold, be it Saivism or Vaishnavism.

Bhakti Cult

"The emergence of Bhakti cult meant intense love and adoration for a personal god, and Bhagavatism, the worship of Vasudeva-Krishna, later known as Vaishnavism, is one of the outstanding phenomena in the history of the evolution of religion in ancient India which 'produced out of its own resources a number of distinct systems and sects'. The original home of Krishna-worship seems to be Mathura in Uttar Pradesh. Originating as a regional movement it spread to other parts of India such as Rajasthan, central and South India, Magadha etc., and by the Second Century B.C. was on the way of assuming an all India character. In the 2nd millennium A.D. the evolution of this Bhakti Cult was backed by a powerful literary movement in the extensive literature of the Puranas, of which the summit is seen in the Bhagavatha Purana. (It is the belief of many scholars that Bhagavata Purana was written somewhere in South India).

In the Vaishnava monuments of the Pallavas a full scale demonstration of the Bhakti movement comprising the four elements of temple worship, Bhagavata teachers and Bhaktas could be seen in its most effective form. Its equally important wing was the literary side which enunciated the principles of Bhakti.

The revival of Vaishnavism in the Tamil country was essentially due to the Alvars' who occupy a significant place on the chief line of the development of the Bhakti movement in India. A good deal of technical and formal development of the tenets of this Vaishnavism was due to the great devotee-scholars like Ramanuja, Rāmānanda, Chaitanya, Sūradasa, Tulasidaasa, Kabir and Guru Nanak.

It was the great scholar Rāmānuja, who founded Visiḥtād waita, who took the Bhakti movement of the Alvars of the Tamil Nadu beyond its borders, first to Karnataka and to the entire length and breadth of India, besides Nepal. He carried the messages of the Tamil Alvars through the medium of Sanskrit, which was the link language and also the medium for all academic and religious pursuits, throughout India then. Some relevant information regarding the spread of the Tamilian Bhakti movement to East India, through the great efforts of Ramanuja in the 12th Cent, A. D. would be given in the following sections.

But the more important and interesting aspect is the 'revival' of 'Rāmānuja's Bhakti movement in the modern period in north India and Nepal.

The Acharyas of the South :

All the great Acharyas of the South, like Adī Sankacharya of Kaladi in Kerala, Sri Rāmānuja from Tamilnadu, and Sri Madhvacharya from Karnataka had connected the peoples of Orissa and Bengal with the South inseparably, as they did with the rest of India too. Their achievements in the field of religious philosophy and logic are well known to the theologians, but their services to the nation, a nation with so many warring sects, of different religions, unifying them under a stronger fold, are relatively less known and appreciated. Whether one subscribes to their views or not one can not but wonder at the tremendous zeal, vision and organising capacity these saints have shown, moulding the social history of this country.

ORISSA

Puri in Orissa has been one of the four most important places of worship/pilgrimage for the Hindus even in prehistorical times. Adi Sankaracharya of Kerala who is said to have made Puri a Vaishnava Ksetra, founded another at Badrinath and a Siva temple at Kedarnath in the Himalayas, also he arranged the custom of only a Keralite performing worship at the Badrinath of Himalayas, a Mangalorian (Kannaadiga) priest to worship in the Pashupathinath temple of Kathmandu-Nepal, ensuring a religious integration among the warring sects of Saivism, Vaishnavism and Saktism. To arrest the onslaught of Buddhism and Jainism, he seems to have adopted the same technique of Buddha for the propagation of his religious message, which has been adopted by all the other Acharyas like Ramanuja, Madhwa, and Nimbarka also.

- 1) A Strong spiritual leadership (as Buddha was for Buddhism).
- 2) Organising bands of Sanyasis to spread the message of Dharma.
- 3) Creating religious orders (Sangha)
- 4) and establishment of Mutis all over the country (comparable to the Buddha Viharas) where dedicated volunteers were trained.

The history of Orissa was very closely connected with that of the Tamils from the 11th Cent. onwards for various reasons. For centuries the Tamils have had maritime trade with the Kalinga people. The word 'Kalingam' in old Tamil for fine cloth, is but one example to mention. Kalingathu Parani' glorified the victory of King Kulottunga Chola's war minister, over the Kalinga King Ananta Varman Coda Ganga (cholaganga). This war between 1098 A.D. and 1110 A.D.) is attested by the Simhachalam inscriptions. This defeated king, who was also a close relative of the victorious king Kulottunga was the great monarch who built the famous and majestic Jagannath Temple in the 12th century. It was more than mere coincidence when king Kulothunga removed the image of Visnu from the famous Chidambaram temple that his rival Ananta Varman built India's biggest temple for Visnu at Puri.

Ananta Varman cholaganga was the medium by which the third most important wave of Vaishnavism was introduced in Orissa, from the South. The influence of his queens on Ananta Varman can not be neglected. His chief queen was Jayam Konda Chola Devi, the daughter of Vira chola, who was the third son of the great king Kulottunga Chola.

Sri Ramanujacharya :

It is during this period that the great Vaishnava Seer Rāmānuja seems to have visited Puri. His visit to Puri is mentioned in 'Prapannāmrutam' the traditional biographical work in Sanskrit by Anantācharya and also in 'Rāmānuja Divya Charitai' in Tamil. It is also briefly recorded in the chronicle of the Jagannath Temple of Puri, namely 'Mādāla Panji (Rajabhoga section).

Further, it is corroborated by Totādri-Matha-Guru Parampara.

Impact of Sri Ramanuja :

It is assumed, with strong reasons, of course, that the influence of Sri Rāmānujā's teachings in Puri, was certainly one of the reasons why the Puri theology moved away from the concept of the couple. There were only two idols in the Jagannath temple then (unlike the three now). Instead of identifying them as Krishna and Radha, the Pāncharaetric interpretation of Krishna and his sister Ekānāmsa (later, as Subhadra) was adopted, as Rāmānuja was oposed to the erotic elements of the Krishna cult. After a couple of decades a further the image of BalaBhadra was added owing to the direct or indirect influence of the South Indian teachers who came to Orissa after its conquest by the Southern king Ananta Varman Ganga Deva.

Shree Jagannath Mandir at Puri

Also the presence of a Goddess in the Jagannath temple, worshipped as Vasudhā (Bhudevi), besides Lakshmi, is a tipical South Indian or Pāncarātric concept. Because Lakshmi is the only consort of Vishnu in the North Indian Vaisnava theology.

The small image of Nīla Mādhava in the sanctum which is only Jagannātha in a miniature form was introduced sometime under the South Indian influence.

Inspite of all this, Rāmānuja's biographical accounts namely (1) Rāmānuja Divya Charitai and 2) Prapannāmrutam create the impresssion that his visit to Orissa was far from success. The legendary accounts have it that R. mānuja, who had the royal support tried to change the mode of worship in Jagannāth Temple by substituting the local priests with his own men. Lord Jagannāth ordered Garuḍa to lift Rāmānuja bodily and remove him from Puri. Accordingly Rāmānuja found, himself 100 miles away from Puri in Srikākulam.

Thus the existing biographies give the impression that Rāmānuja's visit to Puri was not a success at all. But actual evidences available even today bear testimony to the impact of Rāmānuja's visit on Puri.

The sacred mark of Rāmānuja's Sri Vaishnava sect, is carved on the Tower of Lord Jagannatha's temple and on the foreheads of Jagannatha and Balabhadra. When one sees so many people with the Sri Vaishnava mark (ஸ்ரீமूर्తి) on their foreheads and dressed like the Tamilian Vaishnavas, even today at Puri, one will be reminded of Srirangam or Madras. They are mostly North Indians, belonging to the Rāmānuja Mutts in Puri. They do not know Tamil, but they lead a life which is a continuity of the 12th Century Sri Vaishnava way of life of Tamil Nadu.

Among the numerous Vaishnava Mathas at Puri Sri Rāmānuja Mathas have their own systems. Though Jagannath temple was a Vaishnavite temple, the particular Sri Vaishnava sect. of Rāmānuja did find a lot of resistance and was repelled. But still his impact must have been considerable, to have left traces discernible even today.

The one foot wide curtain of cloth hung before the Gods while offerings (food) are made, is a remnant of the Pāncharātra mode of worship Rāmānuja tried to substitute. The hundreds of varieties of offerings, of rice, curries, (மேனாகரம், அப்பம், அதிரசம், போன்றவை) sweetmeats and salty dishes contain many items which remind one of the South Indian eatables in taste and label. The early dawn offerings (Kichudi or Pongal in Tamil) during the months of Mārgasira, Cakes (உளுந்து வடை) made of Rice and Black-gram, which are not found any where else in the East are similar to those prepared in the Vaishnava temples of Tamilnadu and Andhra. Nor can one hear of curd rice offerings anywhere else in the East except Orissa.

While the food is being carried from the temple kitchen to the Gods, those who carry them keep their nose and mouth covered with a cloth to avoid their breath polluting the offerings. This, again, must be from the practice in the South. Because, in Jagannāth temple, there is no pollution possible by caste bars. The Mahā Prasad, the food offered to God, can be partaken by anybody and everybody even from the same leaf. When this is in vogue, customs like having separate eating places for those belonging to Sri Rāmānuja Mathas speak their own story. Sri Rāmānuja wanted to impose, certain strict measures to ensure 'purity' in the temple, of which only some tokens are remaining now. (like, for example, Vaisnavas should eat separately from non-vaisnavas, regardless of caste distinctions).

Among the various temples situated inside the Jagannath temple, Lakshmi's is one of the most important one and this looks like a pavilion of Tamilnadu. This seems to be completely dedicated to Sri Rāmānuja. This, it seems was the place where he used to deliver godly discourses, where he challenged and won the Buddhist monks, which is also depicted on the walls. Rāmānuja's life-size portrait is there, with Oriyan type of decorative painting while the portrait is done in Tamilnadu style. Encircling this portrait are the pictures of all the Alwārs like Andal, Satagopar etc. The paintings of Jeers and the heads of the Puri Rāmānuja Mathas are all given in a beautiful display. On the whole, this front mandap of the Lakshmi temple is a very colourful dedication for the great Rāmānuja or Tamil Nadu.

All the Rāmānuja Mathas in Puri also have the Sankachakra Symbols and Gopura structure typical of the Sri Vaishnava temples of Tamilnadu and the pillars depict minute South Indian sculptures. But most of the mathas have deteriorated except one or two. Most of the mathas are found around Jagannath Temple. The Rāmānuja Matha by right, does the Camara Seva - of the Jagannath Temple.

The names of some of the Rāmānuja Mathas are as :

12th Cent	Rāmānuja Kōte
"	Trimāli Matha
"	Bada Santha "
"	Emār "
16th Cent	Sri Rām Das "
"	Narasimhāchari "

"	Mahabiriya "

18th Cent	Uttara Pārsva „
19th Cent	Jiyar Swāmi „
20th Cent	Siddha Deuli „

and some other Mathas whose period is not known are

- (1) Revasha Matha
- (2) Samādhi „
- (3) Dakshina Pārsua Matha
- (4) Rāghava Das „
- (5) Yatiraja „
- (6) Omkarnāth „

Among the Rāmānuja Mathas, Emar (Embar) matha is in front of the temple, which is also known as Rājagopalachari Matha. It claims to have been established by Rāmānuja himself when he stayed in Puri. This has a good public library also attached to it. If any records are available regarding the history of the Matha, they are not there in the library. (They are with the court). This Matha is also known as Rāmānuja Kōte.

There is a temple for Sri Rāmānuja inside this matha. The priest is a Hindi speaker by birth (from Gorakhpur, U.P.) He looks completely like a Tamilian Sri Vaishnavita priest with his sacred mark, tuft and outfit, and offers worship exactly as it would be done in a Tamilnadu Temple, with (Caṭāri). There are very big halls for discourses and kīrtans, which have beautiful paintings of the Alwars in Tamil Nadu style. There are also the portraits of the heads of this Matha over the centuries which are slowly fading away. Special worship is offered to Andal and Satagopur. In the month of Margairā (Not according to Oriya Almanac, but Tamilian) Andal is being worshipped throughnūt the month (like Tamil Nadu). The boys who stay in these Mathas getting training in Vaishnavism are mostly from North India, but not many Oriyas, or Bengalies. Because all through the east Chaitanya became more popular in the later centuries).

This Emara Matha has a branch at Calcutta also, but is used only as a guesthouse for the Matha officials. The Vaikuntanatha temple, a marble temple, built next to this Calcutta Office is also a Srivaishnava temple built gorgeously, withio 50 years.

The Rāmānuia Mathas in Orissa considered the Annangarachariar Matha at Kānchipuram as their head office. They stay there while touring the South.

The Jiyar Swami Matha (or Giri Swami Matha in Bali Sahi, Puri, is being managed very well. The Vaishnavite Saints' birth days are being celebrated here. The Tamil Vaishnavite Gurus' names are recited daily as Guru Parampara Prabhavam. The present head Garudadwaja Swami, o Hindi Speaker by birth, has stayed in Sri Srirangam for some time, forty years ago. It is exciting to hear him recite in Tamil in his own style all the 30 Tiruppavai hymns of Andal, though he does not know Tamil. One can not but admire the national integration brought about by seers like Rāmānuja.

The Venkatachari Matha has a Rāmānuja Pillar erected only in 1963 - claims it as the actual place where Rāmānuja stayed. Except the Emar and Jiyar Matha - all others are almost defunct atleast not following there original purposes. The Siddha Deuli Matha is used for spending the nights when searching for the New Wood (Dāru) for carving fresh idols of Sri Jagannatha, Subhadra and Baladhara, during Naba Kalēbara Ratha Yatra— தேர்த் திருவிழா. But this is only a recent practice (using the matha).

The whole month of Kārtik (from the fullmoon after Mahalaya, to next) becmoes a month of worship for the Oriyas. They observe very severe rules, stay alone in separate rooms, eat nothing but Narayana prasad, no toxicants, and no luxuries, live as a religious life a true Vaishnava should according to Bhāgavatsm. Seventeen miles from Puri, on the way to Brahmagiri is a place called 'Alālnātha' (Alwarnatha) where Pāncaratra worship is offered. This is believed to be the place where some Alwar stayed during his north Indian trip. Some people say it was Parakāl Alwār (Tirumangai), who spent a long time in North India. The temple was so famous that Sri Chaitanya used to spend 15 days every year when the temple of Jagannath remained closed before Rathayathra. The deity is four handed Nārāyan in standing pose with Sridevi and Bhūdevi on his sides. The architectural style of the deity and Simhasan look South Indian. The small village around the temple is also known as Alwār Neth.

The Rāmānuja Mutts in Puri have got their connection Tōtadri Gaddi, Annam Gaddi Tirupathi Jiyar Gadi, Prati-vāti, Bhayamkaram Gaddi, Ahobilam Gaddi etc,

Inside the Puri temple there is a place named Koili Vaikuntam. This is the place where the old images of the Gods are buried when new ones are made.

A detailed study of the Mathas and rituals in Puri would give very useful and interesting information regarding the cultural influence of the South.

The varieties of Dosa, Idli and other Cakes (தோசை, இட்லி, கொழுக்கட்டை, சுண்டல், ஆதிரசம், etc.) which are the national foods of the Oriyas, make interesting comparison. The word Bakāla bath (curdrice) used in hotels in Tamil nadu is Oriya in origin. 'Pokhāla batho' - cooked rice to which water / curds are added. The Oriya verb 'hāpuḍ' (meaning- முழங்கையில வழிபும்படிச் சாப்பிடுதல்.) is significant too.

Each and every aspect of the Oriyan culture suggests a very deep rooted relationship with the south whether in temple architecture or dance or music which is understandable, as they had powerful kings - who were related to the South Indians (the Eastern cholas) and royal marriages paved the way for large scale cultural contacts.

Another very interesting piece of connection between Orissa and Tamilnadu is Orissa's most popular legend of "Kānchi Kāvēri Expedition" which in a way compensates for the defeat the Or'iyas suffered at the hands of the Tamils, during the Kalinga war. (கலிங்கத்துப் பரணி)

Kānchikāvēri sings the victory of the Puri King Purushōttama Dēva over the King of Kānchipuram. The historicity of this national folk legend is attested by K. Subramaniam's 'Sūryavamsi Gajapatis of Orissa'.

It seems that the successful invasion of the territory of the Vijaya Nagar empire (in which Kanchi was included) by Purushottama Deva of the 15th century, which was under the administration of Chandra Giri based Sāluva Narasimha and (2) Purushottama's marriage with the latter's daughter seem to have some historical possibility. The author of this song Kānchi-Kāveri is also one Purushottam Das, whose period is not known. But the story mentioned is supposed to be about the great king of Puri-Purushottam Gajapati of A.D. 1470 - 1497. The story goes thus.

It was the tradition in Puri that the King considered himself a servant of Lord Jagannath. During the famous Ratha Yatra, the king himself would sweep the space in front of Lord Jagannath—which is followed to this day. The chariot would start its journey only after this is performed.

The King of Kānchi, during his visit to Puri, witnessed this act of the Puri King sweeping the floor and passed derisive comments on the king calling him a menial. The enraged Gajapati waged a war on Kānchi but was badly defeated. But in his second attempt he was helped by Lord Jagannāth himself along with Lord Balabadrā. The Gajapati defeated the Kānchi King and brought his daughter Padmāvathi as a captive, and announced that she would be married off to a menial as a revenge. The imprisoned princess, Padmavathi even tried to commit suicide, which was prevented by the King's wise minister who had all the sympathy for her and also knew that his king and the princess liked each other. On the day of the car Festival in the presence of millions of people the Gajapati was going to marry off the princess to a menial. But in the apt. moment, the wise minister of the King, asked the king who else could be a better menial (chaṇḍāla) to marry the princess than the King himself who was a sweeper before Jagannāth? The minister thus saved the king's word of honour as well as love, with the happy ending of marriage.

After Sri Rāmānuja Vaishnavism of various types and systems spread in eastern, northern and western parts of India, expounded by Sri Madhwācharya, Sri Vallabhacharya, Sri Chaitanya, Sri Sankara Deva, Sri Nimbarka, Sri Rāmananda etc.

As for Sri Vaishnavism in North India, some try efforts seem to have been made for its propāgation. This was carried out by some eminent Acharya and sadhus in their personal capacity in course of their pilgrimage to North India. The stamp of their activities is still traceable in some areas.

Pilgrimage both ways from north to south and from south to north was the general custom amongst the devout since time immemorial, thanks to the teachings of the Hindu sages for effecting religious integration amongst the whole masses of India. Some Alvars of South India must have travelled in North India on pilgrimage and they sang in praise of the divine deities installed in some prominent places. Out of 108 Divya Desias (places of divine deities), which had been praised by the Alvars, 9 places e.g., Tuvarai (Dwaraka), Ayodhya, Naimisaranya, Vada Madurai (Mathura), Tiruvaippadi (Gokul), Kandam (Devaprayag) Tiruppiridi (Jyotispith), Badrikasram and Salagramam (Mukti-Narayan in Nepal) are situated in the North. It is not unlikely if some people were influenced by them while the Alvars were in North India, though it can not be proved decisively at this distant date.

*In those days there were two traditional routes which linked north and south, - one route in the eastern side through coromondal shnre via. vizag, Simhachalam, Srikurmm, Brahmagiri, Puri, Jaipur, Jharkhand, Bhadrak, Bishnupur, Monghyr, Patna to Varanasi and onwards; the other route in the western side through Ghat vis. Nasik, Gujrat, eastern Rajputana to Mathura and onwards. Tracess of activities by the Shree Vaishnava Acharyyas in those days can still be located along these two traditional link routes and colonies and pockets of Shree Vaishnavas found in this part of India ascribe their origin in the hoary passed caused by those moving Shree Vaishnava leaders. Many instances can be cited in this respect.

The ancient temple of Alalnath in Orissa is one such instance. Some believe that it was Tirumangai Alwar who founded this temple, as he was the only Alwar who spent a long time in North India. The temple was so famous that Sri Chaitanya used to spend 15 days there every year when Lord Jagannath's temple at Puri remained closed for Ratha Yatra.

BENGAL

The Sena Kings of Bengal in the 12th century A.D. were from Karnataka and through them the Vaishnavism of the South Indian traditin got to develop in East India. It was in Lashmana Sena's court that Jaydeva sang his 'Gita Govindam'.

History tells us that the worship of Vishnu, flanked by Sridevi and Bhudevi, prevalent among shree Vaishnavas of the Deccan, spread to Eastern India. It has now come to light that while touring East Bengal around 1503 A.D., Sri Chaitanya recovered an image of Vasudeva with Sri and Bhu (people) and Lakshmi and Saraswati, which is not according to Shastric instruction) from a pond in Magdoba village near Faridpur, where the image might have been kept immersed due to fear of desecration by the Muslims and he also reconsecrated its worship, giving charge to his cousin, Vishnudas. (Vide an Article by Sri Chapalakanta Bhattacharyya, Ex-M.P., and Ex-Editor of Ananda Bazar Patrika, published in Jugantar Patrika dated 6.8.1986). This means that Shree Vaishnavite mode of worship was in vogue in some parts of East Bengal as early as 15th century. Other examples can also be cited which prove the existence of Shree Vaishnavism in Bengal about four hundred years ago.*1

Two of the oldest Sree Vaishnava Mutts of Bengal are still in existence; one is in Chandrakona town, Midnapur District, West Bengal. This is known as Nayagunj Achari Murr established in the 16th Cent. by Pandit Swarupananda Mohanta, belonging to the Raghava Charya lineage of Prayag (Allahabad) (Totadri Matha)

The other one is Bada Akhada Mutt (Vedakalai) at Jafarganj - 2 miles north of Murshidabad town established during the reign of Seraj-ed-dula (approx. 1750 A.D.). The mutt was originally in Dacca (Bangladesh) of the lineage of Galta-Gadi near Jaipur in Rajasthan. The Chronological details regarding both these Mutts are available.*2

There is a Sree Vaishnavite colony of Tamilians (recently some Telugus are also settled there) in (Gddi) Bero Village of Purulia Dist. (West Bengal) on Asansol-Adra Railway route.

*1 Pp. 303, 304.—Swami Sri Narasimha Ramanuja Das, Tamilnadu-Bengal Cultural Relations I I T S Madras 1987.

*2 Ibid Pp. 304, 305

For more than 300 years 60 families of Sri Vaishnav Tamilans are settled there. There are two versions regarding the origin of this settlement in the remote corner of Purulia.*1

(1) Acharya Tirumalai, a Tridandi Sanyasi from Kānchimandalam, on his way back from Badrinath on the Himalayas came to this place. The local king of Panchakote wanted to become his disciple and requested him to stay there. But the Acharya did not agree to this. He sent his brother Rangaraja Swami after returning to Kānchi. The king and his family became his disciples; he gave his guru landed properties and constructed a Sri Vaishnava temple there for Adi Kesava Perumal.*2

The other version is that the King of Panchakote met Acharya Gopala (Tirunel veli) on his Tirupathi pilgrimage and became his disciple. He helped his Guru settle down in Beto, built the temple for him, besides giving him landed properties.*3

The headmaster of the Panchkote school gives the following details. The Kings of Panchkote were originally from Rajasthan. They shifted their residence to Bengal fearing raids from the Marathas, Raja Man Singh seems to have given them grants. While the Sri Vaishnava Acharya Rāmānuja was staying in the village the king got a divine message in his dream of this elderly Brahmin Acharya. He followed his foot prints and requested him to accept him as the disciple. The Acharya refused but sent his brother Gopala Acharya later, who brought many other families with him to Purulia.

The nephew of the Panchkote King Raja S. K. Singh Deo has a similar version to tell. He says that as Rajputs they still worship Durga in their palace, but their ancestor was the disciple of the Sri Vaishnava Acharya.

*1, 2, 3 Ibid Pp. 304, 305

The title 'Goswami' has been given by the King to these Acharyas. The direct descendents (through the sons only) of the Acharya can have this title.

The temple of Adi Kesava Perumal is managed by a trust and the entire village is centred around the temple. These migrants are called Purulia Iyengars. Only those of the older generation knows Tamil, though they are very particular of their Tamilian customs, particularly in bringing their brides only from Tamil Nadu. otherwise Bengali is the language at home. Their spoken Tamil has a distinct accent.

A documentary with the title 'Merging of the two cultures' filmed by Sri Mriganku Sekhar and reviewed on 4-12-87 depicts the life of these Bengalised Tamilians in a beautiful manner - of how a rigid society has adapted itself to a different culture, without losing its identity. All the social and religious rituals of a Sri Vaishnava community are kept intact in this Bero village.

Sri Chaitanya himself travelled in South India extensively. He performed his Charurmāsyā vrata (four months) in SriRangam staying with a Sri Vaishnava family and had great religious discussions with the Sri Vaishnava scholars there. (There is a memorial in honour of Sri Chaitanya in front of the SriRangam temple). "When Sri Chaitanya returned from SriRangam he brought with him. One Sri Gopal Bhatta, a scholar and son of a Sri Vaishnava Acharya. Sri Gopala Bhatta, referred to as the 'Dravida Pandita' in the in the Gaudiya Vaishnava works compiled the famous Smriti book of Gaudiya Vaishnava Sampradaya, namely 'Hari' Bhakta Vilasa, on the lines of the Sri Vaishnava Smriti texts. Sri Chaitanya also brought the book 'Brahma samhita, probably from Alwar Tirunagari (ஆழ்வார் திருநகரி) in Tamilnadu, on which he based his philosophical root.

The Gaudiya Vaishnava works like 'Sat Sandarba' acknowledge their indebtedness to the Acharyas of Tamilnadu and the Alwars.

Sri Rupa Goswami has used Kulasekhara Alwar's Mukundamala and Yamunacharya's stotra Ratna in his work. Sri Jiva Goswami, one of the Chief exponents of Gaudiya philosophy admits in his 'Tatva Sandarba' that he had accepted the views of Sri Rāmānuja's Sri Bhashya in formulating his philosophical doctrine *

'Chaitanya Charitamruta' the Bengali work on his life has references to Alavandār Astōtra'

The chaitanya centre at Mayapur (West Bengal) has erected there a statue of Sri Rāmānujā chārya.

For nearly 400 years, even upto the period of Rabin-dranath Tagore only Vaishnava poetry dominated the literary scene of entire East India, particularly Bengal. The voice of the Alvars can be clearly heard in the mystic poetry of Tagore and even in the Brahma Sangeet of the modern Bengal, (Brahma Samajists)

UTTAR PRADESH

On the link route in the western side such Shree Vaishnava phckets are not rare as well. Mathura and its surrounding areas were perpetual sources of inspiration to various Alvars, particularly to Periyalvar (Vishnuchitta Suri) and Andal, which can be noted from their Divyaprabandhas. It was a must point of pilgrimage for the South Indian Vaishnavas and Sadhus who desired to travel North India in those days. Sri Nātha Muni, the first Acharya of Shree Vaishnava hierachy, lived and meditated in Govardhan near Mathura for a long time. The cave on the Govardhan hill in which he meditated, the place 'Yatipura' and the deity established by him and known as 'Srinath' after his name, are still in existence and remind us about his meditation here. From Guruparampara we come to know that he was so much impressed about this place that he wanted to settle here and did not go back to his native place Virnarayanpuram in Tamilnadu until his family deity Sri Rajagopal instructed him in dream to return. Even then he ordered before passing away from the earth that his grand-son should be named 'Yāmuna' after Yamuna river. Iswar Muni, son of Nātha Muni, also stayed in Govardhan for a long time. It is stated that this lineage continued there, but no account is available upto the 16th century after which the systematic record of the lineage is extant.

Sri Manavāla Māmuni (or Varavara Muni as he is widely called in the north-1370-1443 A.D.) organised eight Mutts or Gadis for the purpose of strengthening and propagation of Shree Vaishnavile ideals (தென் கலை) in the South. Before 19th century only Totadri Mutt [which has about 200 branches now) was engaged in this propagation of Sri Vaishnava ideals throughout India.

"It built up centuries back at least three monasteries in three important pilgrimage centres in three corners of North India, viz, Puri, Varanasi and Dwārakā which in their turn played a very important role in the medieval ages. Another factor contributed to this. There was a convention in the Tōtadri Gadi that a prospective Pontiff must visit 106 'Divya Deshas' (2 not being on Earth) as narrated by Alwars before he became Gadipati and in this way while travelling through the nine Divya Deshas of north India, the Shree Vāishnavites of Tōtadri Gadi might have brought in its fold many persons. we get the account of one Devacharyya (14th century) of Tōtadri Gadi who came to Ayodhya from the south, settled there propagating Shree Vaishnavism. Hariyacharyya, was the grand-disciple of Devacharyya. Both of them came into conflict with Dasanami Advaitins, who then ruled supreme in the area. At last Haryacharyya defeated Raghav Bhatta, topmost Advaitin scholar of Varanasi at that time, in Shastric duel and converted him into Shree Vāishnavism naming him as Raghavananda who in later years got the famous Ramanada as his disciple." Thus Tōtadri Gadi at Vāranasi became renowned even in the 14th cent. A. D.

* Ibid - Pp, 317, 318

*Swami Balananda (also called Anbhayānanda) in Sisya — parampara of Rāmānanda, who was Pontiff of Jaipur Gatta Gadi made a unique service by uniting four sects of Vaishnavas (Rāmānujiya, Madhwacharya, Nimbarkiya and Vallabhacharya) in a conference at Brindavan.

In Gujrat, Swāminarayan fath has considerable followers. Its origin can also be traced from Sri Vaishnavism, though in its forms and significances it has got no similarity. "Shree Vaishnavism, detracted from its orthodox form and reformed to suit the general masses by easing from rigorous ritual performances and changing the adroable God from Sri Lakshmi-Narayan to Sri Sita-Ram or Sri Radha-Krishna, made tremendous appeal to the public throughout North India, thanks to the efforts of Ramananda (1303-14H A.D.) and his disciples in the 14 and 15th century and onwards. It has been rightly stated, in one sense, that Sri Ramanada was the harbinger of B4akti-dharma in the north :

"Bhakti Draavida Upajii Laye Raamaananda
pargat Kiyaa Kabir ne Sapta Dviipa Naba Khanda"*

But though Ramananda's teachings are similar with Shree Vaishnavism on the doctrinal view, they are extremely divergent on the social side.

Thus at the time of Manavāla Māmuni, Shree Vaishnavism prevailed in North India though in some ways alienated from its original form. Nevertheless it played a very important role in spreading Vaishnavism.

But Sri Vaishnavism in its multiplicated grandeur, i.e. its literary base - the divine beauty of the Alwars' Tamil hymns, with their rich commentaries in Tamil and Mani pravalam - a synthesis of the vedic and nonvedic elements evolving a continuous and logical stream of theological thought ; the temple worship with its Agamic rituals and the Tamil hymns preceding the Vedic chantings ; worship of the Alwars and the Acharyas ; awakening of the common man to his personal relationship with God ; doing away with the narrow barriers of caste, community, region and language before God ; glorifying the sacred places blessed by the Alwars 'and Acharyas' association with them - all these in their combined and simultaneous impact - did not reach the regions outside South India before 19th century A.D.

REVIVAL OF SRI VAISHNAVISM IN MODERN TIMES

In his very lucid account of 'Shree Vaishnavism in North India' Swami Sri Nrisingha Rāmānuja Das raises the curtain dramatically to show the floodgates of the Vaishnava Bhakti movement of the Tamil Alwars opened once again, but this time, in the north.

The situation at the close of 19th century and early quarter of 20th century is breath taking in its phenomenal Revival of the Vaishnava Bhakti of the Tamil Alwars in regions where Tamil is not spoken and carried on by and among people who do not know Tamil. The literary outburst in multilingual media, with no political, social or financial gains as incentives, is proof enough of the faith and devotion that is the back bone of the movement.

How this change could come about when no trace of any serious influence of Sri Vaishnavism is seen for centuries is something that demands an explanation. Particularly because it is not an isolated or seasonal outburst of a by gone era but here Sri Vaishnavism of the South is seen in its pure and original form, a living religion, absorbing the intellectuals as well as the common people, socially and spiritually.

"Govardhan Gadi, Prativadi Bhayankar Gadi and Totadri Gadi took the initiative in the 19th century and became successful in spearheading Sri Vaishnavism in North India during this period. Provincewise in U. P., punjab, Tehri-Garwal and Jammu, Govardhan Gadi exercised comparatively more influence ; in Saurashtra, Gujarat, Rajputana and Bihar Prativdi Bhayamkar Gadi was more influential and in places like Kashi (U.P.) Didwana (Rajasthan), Dwarka (Gujrat), and Bengal Totadri Gadi had its stronghold.

Govardhan Gadi (Branch of Annan Gadi, Sri Rangam) with its headquarters in Govardhan near Mathura is stated to have a hoary past and is said to have links with Sri Natha Muni (10th cent). but no chronological history before the 16th Cent. available.

According to Govardhan-Suri-Prabhāvam - a Sanskrit text, one Sri Sathakopa Swami established a monastery by the side of Manas ganga in Govardhan. He had been initiated by a Sri Vaishnava teacher of the Annan Gadi from the south. After Sri Satakopa Swami, the fifth pontiff in succession was Sri Rangadesika Swami. It was this great saint, scholar and Acharya who really opened the treasure house of the Tamils to entire India. He was a TAMILIAN Sri Vaishnava from Kanchi mandalam.

SRI RANGADESIKA SWAMI ( 1810 - 1874 A.D. )

It is this great Acharya who got the Tamils' contribution to Indian culutue, duly recognised and revered. In a way, he achieved in 20th century what Sri Ramanujacharya did a 1000 years ago. The Bhakti movements of the Tamils had crossed regional barriers and unified people. But still, because of the language barrier, the non Tamils could not feel the heart throb of the Tamils, the devine music of the Alwars, which is the springboard for the theology and philosophy of Sri Vaishnavism.

This himalayan feat of taking Tamil Vaishnava literature to the non Tamils, thereby nationalising the Alwars' treasures was possible only to the great Visionary and versatile genius that was Rangadesika Swami. After this, Sri Vaishnavism, for the North Indians, was not only an Indian religion but the door that opened to South Indian culture and civilisation also.

Sri Rangadesika Swami — (1810 - 1874)

Sri Ranga desika Swami was born in a Sri Vaishnava brahmin family living in a village called 'Arhan' (Agrahāyan) near Sri Perumpudur (birth place of Sri Ramanuja), about 50 miles from Madras. His parents were Srinivasacharya Swami and Sri Ranganayaki Devi. Swamiji was born in 1810 A. D. in 'Tiruvadandai' in his maternal grandfather's place. He lost his parents early in his childhood. He was a very bright student even as a child and mastered his traditional Vedic studies very soon. He wanted to further his studies which was not possible in his village.

He had a strange dream of a buffalo chassing him, and blocking his way in all directions except north. This was interpreted as a divine foretelling that his future lay in the north. So when he came to know of a scholar Ananthacharya Swami of Kanchipuram who was going to north India with his party, he approached him for permission to join him. Anantacharya Swami was very impressed with the young scholar and happily took him along.

While in north India Sri Ranga desika Swami visited Brindavan and then Govardhan. Then one Srinivasa Charya Swami was the pontiff of Govardhan Pitha. Sri Ranga desika Swami became his student and disciple and when his studies were over there he left for Kasi with his teacher's permission. In Kasi also his brilliant scholarship earned him great name and fame. His guru, now very old, recalled him and appointed him as his successor, as the pontiff of Goverdhan Pith.

Sri Ranga desika Swami's achievements were manifold. His charisma drew people of all walks to him. His phenomenal education, versatility, organising capacity, brilliance as a teacher in a very wide range of Shastras, exemplary conduct as Spiritual leader, devotion and dedication of the highest order, performance of the rituals etc. made him the crownjewel among Acharyas. Under his inspiration his disciples Seth Govinda das and his brothers Seth Lakshmichand and Radh-Kissan of Madhura (who were formerly Jains) built in 1851 the great Sri Rangaji temple in Brinavan and handed it over to their Guru as a gift.

This is the largest Sri Vaishnava temple in entire north India built at a cost of three crores, with the utmost care and according to the Shastras. The deities, their 'Vahanas' etc. etc. were all brought from Sri Rangam. The deities are Lord Rangamannar and Godamba. The huge temple complex with its 5 Prakaras not only enshrines all the Sri Vaishnava Alwars and Acharyas, but has houses built for the 30 or so families of the Tamil prists also. Swamiji then settled at Brindavan and shifted the Govardhan Gadi there. The Vast temple complex became the centre of Sri Vaishnava culture in north India and played a leading role in propagating Sri Vaishnavism.

Sri Ranga desika Swami wrote and translated into Sanskrit from Tamil and Manipravala the core Sri Vaishnava literatures, which were so far not available to north Indians. This mammoth achievement of the Swamiji opened the door to his disciples of various regions and languages who in turn translated them into their own regional languages like Hindi, Bengali Nepali etc. Most of the important personalities listed in pages 23 and 24 (of Govardhan Gadi) were disciples of Sri Ranga desika Swami.

Among them experts in Vedānta and other Sastras were Sudarsanācharya, Srinivasācharya Sastri, Ramanuja charya Sastri, - all from Brindavan, Kamalanayanacharya Sastri (Junagarh), Bangshidhar Sastri (Amritsar), Vasudevā charya Sastri and Mahaban Sastri (Biani Punjab), Ramamisra Sastri, Bhagawatācharya Sastri (Kashi), Tularam Sastri, (Kashi) Bhagawata charya Shastri, (Ayodhya) and Chiranjilal Shastri (Mathura).

The following were experts in Rahasya Shastra- Balaram Swami (Ayodhya) pare male Swami, Ramanuja Das Swami, Maithliji, Surdasji, Shankarshanacharya Sastri (all in Brindavan), Paramahansa Rajendracharya (Tretapali, Bihar), Mahanta Ramaprapanna Charya (Deoreah) and Govindacharya (Bilsi).

This shows the tremendous interest Sri Ranga desika Swami created among the youths of his time by his teaching and organising ability.

The disciples, after the demise of their Guru, spread Sri Vaishnavism in different parts of North India by establishing temples and Ashrams and initiating thousands of peoples into Sri Vaishnavism.

Sri Ranga desika Swami also established the glory of Sri Vaishnavism by defeating his opponents in Shastric duels organised by the Rajahs of Bundi and Jaipur.

Swami Sri Yatindra Ramanuja Charya—(1892-1975)

Though quite a few biographies of Sri Ramanuja and the life sketches of the Alvars had been written in Bengali, and also a translation of Sri Bhasyam as far back as 1911, these works were not the outcome of any organised Sri Vaishnava propagation.

Swami Sri Yatindra Ramanujacharya — (1892 - 1975)

Sri Vaishnavism of the highest order was born in West Bengal in the form of Swami. Swami Sri Yatindra Ramānujacharya.

*1 Sri Upendra Mohan Sengupta, a deputy magistrate at Purnea formed the nucleus of a small band of young elites, professionals and intellectuals from the topmost rung of the society. They were greatly impressed and influenced by his spiritual quest, pious life, devotion and finally, dedication to Swami Sri Balaramji of Ayodhya, the disciple of Sri Ranga desika Swami. Sri Upendra Mohan Sengupta was instrumental in these young intellectuals initiation to Sri Vaishnavism.

Dr. Indu Bhusan Basu, who was then a young but renowned physician of exceptional talent and fame was one of them. He, along with some other young men of the group, the famous Dr. Nalini Rajan Sengupta (nephew of Sri Upendra Mohan), accountant general Sri. Sachindra Mohan Dasgupta, the famous book merchant Sri Asutosh Dhar etc. got formerly initiated into Sri Vaishnavism by Sri Balram Swami in 1919 & Dr. Indu Bhusan became Yatindra Ramanuja Das.

*2 Indu Bhusan was born on 18th. Dec. 1892 in Banskedia Village in Hughli district in his maternal grand father's house. He was the forth among the fourteen children of Sri Rasiklal Basu and Anasuya Devi. Sri. Rasiklal was employed in the Postmaster Generals' Office. Indu Bhusan was educated at Mitras Institution and Scotch Church College and then entered the Medical College. He was such a brilliant student.

that right from class one upto his M.D examination he was always at the top, bagging all the prizes and awards that were to be won. He was the first and only doctor who earned his M. D. degree within one year of his M. B., in the entire history of Calcutta University. He was equally proficient in sports. Infact, throughout his life, whatever he did, he did it with such dedication and perfection which is not possible for ordinary people. As Dr. Govinda Gopal Mukherjee puts it in the introduction to 'Smarane Manane Acharya Jatindra' Sakthi and Bhakti seem to be two forces that pervaded his entire life and enabled him to achieve such phenomenal success in his activities (Karma), his range of knowledge, (Gnana) and his absolute surrender and service to God (Bhakti). They were all in one direction-and one goal-LC God realisation.

His father Sri Rasiklal was an ardent Sākta (Sakti upasaka), but Indu Bhusan seems to have been attracted by Vaishnavism from the beginning. He was well known for his excellent reading of Padavalis and Bengali Kirtans (of Chaitanya Stream). Indu Bhusan was married to Mrinalini Devi, daughter of Phanindranath Mitra of Bhowanipur in 1914 and had two sons and two daughters. He had a roaring practice and his fame was not limited to Calcutta alone. He was not only the family physician of some of the most distinguished families of Calcutta, but also was invited to Kathmandu, Bombay, Delhi, Lahore, U. P. and Bihar for consultations.

But even right from his student life his mind was drawn to spiritual matters. He had become a vegetarian from 1919 and had decided to take initiation into Sri Vaishnavism quite early.

After Sri Balram Swamiji's demise in 1931, Swami Sri Yatindra Ramanuja Das' strong desire was to renounce wordly life and devote his entire time and energy in spiritual pursuits only. He built a temple for Bhagawan Lakshmi Narayan, and an Ashram on the banks of the Ganges at Khardah, North 24 Parghnas (10 miles from Calcutta) in 1946. He also founded a free hospital, a school, a Post Office etc. at Khardah all in the name of his Guru Sri Balaram Swamiji, and also a temple for Sri Ranganath at Puri.

In 1947 he relinquished his wordly ties, his profession, fame and everything, when he was at the top of his career, and took to the life of a simple Sanyasi as Jatindra Ramanuja Das.

He went to Sri Rangam (Trichy) in 1951 stayed there for a year and studied entire Nāṭayira Divya Prabandam with the commentary of Peria Action Pillai in Tamil from Sri U. V. Rama Swamy Iyengar and all the 9 Sanskrit books of Sri Ramanuja in Sanskrit from Kasturi Rangachari, with great devotion and a labour beyond imagination. He learnt enough Tamil in those seven or eight months to later translate Alwars' hymns into Bengali, word to word, with Tamil transliteration, commentary and explanation?

He first translated into Bengali entire works of Sri Ramanuja, 2 of Yāmunācharya, several works of Lokacharya Swami with commentary of Manavala Māmuni. All of these were published by him from his Ashram Press. He also published several other Sri Vaishnava Sanskrit literatures with Bengali translation written by a Sri Vaishnava Savant - Srinivas Acharya residing near Kathmandu, Nepal. This Acharya had stayed and studied in Nanguneri.

Swami Jatindra Ramanuja charya's most important work was the translation of the hymns of all the Alvars into BENGALI from ORIGINAL TAMIL. (even those which were not done by Sri Ranga desika Swami). In all these, besides translation of the original Tamil verses in Bengali Script, Bengali meaning of each Tamil word running Bengali translation of each Tamil verse and important notes and significance in the Tamil verse if any are given. Thus after his return from Sri Rangam at the age of about 60 he wrote and published nearly 60 books, between 1955 and 1975. Nachiar Tirumozhi is yet to be released.

Swamiji has initiated hundreds of people into Sri Vaishnavism. There is a sizeable population of Sri Vaishnavas around Sri Balaram Dharma Sopan, who have adopted. The Sri Vaishnava way of life (Vegetarian food, observing Sri Vaishnava holy days, Pāvaṁ Nonbu etc.)

After Swamiji's sad demise in 1975, his mission is continued by his disciple and successor Swami Sri Nrisimha Ramanuja Das.

He first translated into Bengali entire works of Sri Ramanuja 2 of Yāmunaśāstrya, several works of Lokanātha Swami with commentary of Mādhava Mādhava. All of these were published by him from his Ashram Press. He also published several other Sri Vaishnava Sanskrit literatures with Bengali translation written by a Sri Vaishnava Swami - Srīnivas Acharya residing near Kāṣṭhānāḍu, Nāga. This Acharya had stayed and studied in Nāga.

Bengali Scholars hail Swami Jatindra Ramanuja as the Bhagiratha who brought the Bhakti Ganga of the Tamil Alvars to Bengal and they feel grateful to him, because, through him they could know the great culture of the Tamils. (Dr. Mahanamvartha Brahmachari Maharaj Pp-23 - Smarane manane Acharya Jatindra).

Swami Sri Nrisingha Ramanuja Das

Sri Nimaicharan Basu, son of Sri, Krishna Bhusan Basu (who was brother of Sri Indu Bhusan Basu) and Smt. Saraju Basu was born in Nov. 1932. After passing the M.Com. examination of Calcutta University, with 4th rank, he became a Chartered Accountant in 1957. He worked as an Accounts officer, as a lecturer in Commerce in Sri Vidayasagar College, Calcutta, etc. etc.

At the age of 17 he got initiated into Sri Vaishnavism and was given diksha by Swami Sri Kamalanayana Acharya, of Sri. Vijaya Raghava temple, Ayodhya, U. P. After diksha he was given the name Sri Nrisingha Ramanuja Das.

He did not marry. Renounced family life in 1965, and came to stay in Sri. Balram Dharma Sopan, served as honorary secretary to Sri Balram Seva Mandir (Hospital) until 1972. Since then he looks after the management of the Ashram and its various activities, including the religious and literary aspects.

During 'Pous mas' (পৌষ মাস), he delivers discourses every day in the temple which is attended by the Sri Vaishnavas, and conducts the rituals. He is editing and printing the works of late Swami Sri. Yatindra Ramanujacharya, which was not completed then.

Swami Sri. Nrisingha Ramanuja Das has printed and published the following 4 books, besides editing 2 books

1. Tirukkural — His Bengali Translation of the Tamil work (1993)
2. Ramanuja Nutrandadi „ „ of Amudanar
3. Dakshinatye Devula bhumi - The holy places in South India
4. Smarane manane Acharya Yatindra - Edited - Centenary Commomeration Volume.
5. First 3 Alwars and their Divya Prabhandas } edited the Ben-
6. Andal Alwar and her „ „ } gali translations

He is also the editor of the Sri Vaishnava Bengali (monthly) journal 'Ujjivan' published from Sri Balram Dharma Sopan. He has written about 150 articles on Sri. Vaishnavism, Gaudiya Vaishnavism and on religion in general. He is also the author of about 50 stories for juvenite readers. He is rendering unique service to Sri Vaishnavism by serialising his very detailed history of Sri Vaishnavism, in Ujjivan - which is the fruit of his dedication and labour. He is also managing the big library of Sri Balram Dharma Sopan, containing almost all the works publishd on Sri Vaishnavism in all the Indian languages and English (about 4000 books) besides attending to the printing and publication at the Ashram Press. These are only part of his routine, because mainly he is a Sri Vaishnava Sanyasi who has his spiritual life to take care of. He undertakes long pilgrimages all over India, and makes full use of them, because the libraries there are of equal importance to him.

But very few people, in Calcutta, know that in a quite corner, Sri Ramanuja of Tamilnadu has his disciples, whose devotion and dedication shun all publicity and practice his precepts in letter and spirit.

Swami Sri Anantacharya

(In the revival of Sri Vaishnavism in North India, the pontiffs of Prativadi Bhayankar Gadi (Kanchipuram) have played a very significant role. His ancestor was Mudumbai Nambi who was one of the 'pithadishes' (பித்தாதிசை) created by Sri Ramanuja.

Sri Ananthacharya Swami or Gadi Swami (1774 ? -1875 A.D.) came to North India, and travelled extensively in Rajputana propagating Sri Vaishnavism among the elites as well as commoners. He was greatly revered and honoured by the Rajahs of Jodhpur, Bundi, Kotah and Udaipur. The temple at Pushkar -(Ajmir) was built, in 1845 A.D. by his disciple Sri Puranmull Ganeri wala as per his Guru's wish.

His great grand son (4th in succession) Sri Anantha-Charya also turned out to be an equally illustrious missionary. He was born in Tirupati in 1871 A.D., as son of Sri Krishnamacharya, and Smt Perundeyi. He was educated in Tirupati and Kanchi. He was a very versatile scholar knowing English, Sanskrit, Gujarati, Marathi, and Hindi besides South Indian languages. He travelled extensively on foot throughout north India, propagating Sri Vaishnavism in the Central provinces, Bihar, Orissa, Calcutta, U. P., Rajputana, Ahmedabad etc. converting thousands of people to his sect.

* He organised Sri Vaishnava conferences in an All India basis, for the first time at Prayag, U. P. in 1911, and then in the following yers at Puri, Jabra (Malwa) and Calcutta with grand success. He also enhanced the glory of Sri Vaishnavism by winning in Sastrie duels at Varanasi. He founded Sri Vaishnava temples at Rol (Rajputana), Jabra (Malwa), Varanasi, Chindwada, Amaravati, and Bombay (Panasawadi). This Venkatesh temple at Bombay is hailed as the Tirripati of north India. Swami Anantacharya also restored many worn out shrines to their former glory by extensive repairs.

Apart from his lecturing tours in north India he wrote many books on Sri Vaishnava philosophy and published well known periodicals like Shastramuktavali, Manjubhasini, Vaidik Sarvaswa, Brahma Vidya etc. etc. He established the Sudarshan press at Kanchipuram in 1899 for this purpose.

His grandson, the present head of the Prativadi Bhayamkar Mutt at Kanchi, Swami Sri Srinivaseharya, informed me that all the books from the library Sri Hayavandana Lila Sadanam established by Swami Anantacharya have been transferred to Sri Anantacharya Indological Research Institute (cuffe parade, Bombay), opened to commemorate his centenary celebrations. Sri Anantacharya Indological Research Institute at Bombay takes Sri Vaishnava research to international levels. In December 1989, the seventh International Sri Vaishnava Conference was jointly held by the Institute and a Canadian University in Montreal.

He also left behind a band of talented disciples who dedicated their lives in continuing his mission. Sri Visvaksena Charya Tridandi Maharaj (Buxar - Bihar) Swami Devanayaka Charya (Varanasi), Sri Laksmanacharya (Amjhora), Pandit Dwarakaprasad Chaturvedi (Prayag), Sri Narahari Sastri (Manasa) Sri Sampath Kumar Misra (Sikar - Rajasthan), Sri Ram Pratap Sastri etc. or some notable disciples.

Among the disciples and patrons the business families of Kshemraj Srikrishnadas, Seth Puranmall Ganeriwala and the Somanis are to be mentioned for their dedication and contribution financially and by active help. Swami Sri Anantacharya has only one parallel, Swami Sri Ranga desika Swami - for his phenomenal contribution to the revival of Sri Vaishnavism in north India.

Tridandi Swami Smd. Visvaksenacharya Maharaj

He is perhaps the only living Sri Vaishnava Acharya of the stature that could gain him 1 lakh, followers in Bihar & U. P. He is 102 years old and held in very high reverence by the hundreds of Acharyas in the north. He usually stays at Sripathi Pitha and Sri Lakshmi Narayan Mandir at Charitravan - Buxar, Bihar. This is a Divyadesha, built according to Pancharathra Agama.

Sri Visvaksenacharya Swami refers to himself as the disciple of Swami Anantacharya. In 1931 A. D. when the Swamiji visited Charitravan, the Sripath Pitha's head was Sri Ramakrishnacharya. As per the Swamiji's wish the young Visvaksenacharya was given charge of the 'Pitha'. He had 'Sanyas' from the Swamiji at Bombay.

Visvaksenacharyaji has written about 100 books and performed 100 yognas. His 50 disciples have established temples in different corners of north India in the name of their Guru - namely at Ayodhya, Palamau, Gaya, Arrah, Nalanda, Haridwar, Buxar, Brindavan, Badayun, Ajamgarh, Dumka, Rohtas etc.

He is known for his penance (tapas) and simple living. He stays only in a straw hut. He has played a very important role in spreading Sri Vaishnavism in Bihar.

Tridandi Swami Ram Narayanacharya Maharaj

He was born in 1921 in Gopalgunj, Saran district, Bihar as the son of Sri Vaikuntacharya (Budharam Tiwari) and Vaikuntanayaki. He left his home at the age of about 12 years and came to Sri Visvaksenacharya, and got initiated, in to Sri Vaishnavism. The Swamiji initiated him into 'Sanyas' also.

Sri Ram Narayanacharya Swami was educated in Buxar, Charitravan Brindavan, and Kashi. He came to Melkote in South and studied under Narayanacharya Maharaj. The Kosalesh Sadan Ashram and temple at Ayodhya were established by him. He travelled through out India propagating Sri Vaishnavism.

About 100 books were written by him about Sri Vaishnavism including (1) Yatindra Pravara Prabhavam (2) Prapannamritam and (3) Sri Bharshya. He was President of Sri Vishnav Sammelan for a long time. He passed away in August 1985, at the age of 63 or 64.

Ananta Sandesh

'Ananta Sandesh' is the Sri Vishnava Hindi (monthly) Journal published from Sri Ranganath Press at Brindavan, U.P. in honour of Sri Anantacharya Swami. It renders unique service not only to the cause of Sri Vaishnavism but also to the integration of the south, north, east and west of India, so naturally and beautifully,

Hundreds of articles on the Alvars' lives and bhakti philosophy, translation of commentaries into Hindi, literary pieces like Goda Chalisa, Ramanuja chalisa, dohas on Satakopa Swami, Goda Bhajan, serialised verses (as the Venkatesh Charitra by Pt. Jugal Kishore Mitra), and a news section to keep one posted with every thing that takes place in the Sri Vaishnava world etc. make it a very valuable social register also.

It faithfully records consecration of new Sri Vaishnava temples, religious functions in the temples, important festivals and celebrations, announces holy days, release and publication of Sri Vaishnava literature, announces and covers religious camps, lecture tours, conferences, Chaturmasya Vrata Camps of important Acharyas, particularly in the month of Margazhi when month long 'Kalakshepas' religious (discourses) take place all over India.

It is really a cultural ambassador as well. It speaks about Tiruvallvar and Tulasidas with the same sense of reverence and pride. In fact all the aspects of religion that emphasise a moral, ethical and spiritual upgrading of life form the subject matter. Needless to say, it faithfully records the charities of individuals also - like opening of a school or college or hospital, thanking them on behalf of the society.

Sri Kesavadev Sastri, editor of Ananta Sandesh for over 2 decades, is a prolific writer, an erudite Sri Vaishnava scholar and author and translator of many works of the Tamil Acharyas as will be seen in the Hindi list. He is the spirit behind this successful journal.

Desika Sudha is another Sri Vaishnave journal published from Bihar by Tridandi Swami Sri Vedanta Ramanujacharya.

It will be of interest to know that in the Hindi articles published in Ananta Sandesh, the typical Tamil Vaishnava words like Tirumanjanam (திருமஞ்சளம்) Tirumāligai (திருமாளிகை) Sāttupadi (சாத்துபடி) pongal (பொங்கல்) etc. are used as such and not their translations. This is by way of showing their proud identity with the Tamil Culture.

Acharyas of different branches of Totadri Gadi in North India also penetrated deeply in the villages of Bengal, Bihar U. P., and M. P. for propagating the Ramanuja cult. Nor did the Ahobhila Gadi lag behind, but it concentrated on the urban side.

There are accounts of how in Laksmipasa village in East Bengal an Acharya of Totadri Math attracted many into Sri Vaishnavism about 60 years ago.

Some of the important Bengali Shri Vaishnavite personalities were :- (1) Vishnuchitta Swami (Bimalendu Mohan Banerjee of Laksmipasa village of Jessore District), who established the Totadri Math at Dwaraka.

2) The other one was Smt. Ayodhamba (A Bengali widow from Shantipur from Nadia district) who established a Sri Vaishnava Mutt at Sri Mushnam, Arcot District.

3) But the most important of is the Bengalee devotees was Sri Srinivasacharya, a native of Dhamuah village in South 24 Parganas (West Bengal). He was initiated to Sri Vaishnavism in his youth by the above mentioned Vishnuchitta Swami. He studied in Nāṅgunēri (Vānamāmalai) It is he who was responsible for establishing the Sri Vaishnavite Mutts and temples in Kāthmandu (Nepal). 3 books of his in Bengali were published by Yatindra Swami. He died at the age of 75 sometime between 1968-70. He also wrote in Nepali on Sri Vaishnavism.

In Kathmandu (Nepal) the Sri Vaishnava temple- Venkatesh Mandir ( at Bhaktisputali near Goshala) has Sri Rāghavēndrāchāri (A Nepali Scholar and devotee turned Shri Vaishnava) as its Mahanta. He is the author of many books in Nepali language on Sri Vaishnavism.

Venkatesh Mandir was founded in 1911. It seems, the daughter-in-law of the former Prime Minister of Nepal (Rana) became a Sri Vaishnavite, influenced by four Vaishnavi Saints (women) who came from India and it is her support that revived the interest in Vishnavism in Nepal recently. As one can see, Nepal, except for the communication difficulties, seems to be only an extension of India in matters of religion and culture. Like Rāmānujiya Vaishnavism, the Madhvā, Nimbārka and Vallabhā Sects also have found their places there.

Vēnu Gopal Mandir, another Sri Vaishnavite temple at Kāthmandu (Delhi Bazaar - Maiti Devi) was being conducted by Sri Varada Vallabha Rāmanuja Dasi and the Mahanta was Rām Prapanna Achārya in 1985. Sri Srīnivāsāchāri (a grandson of Rabindra Nath Tagore, was its former Mahanta who is no more).

There are many more Sri Vaishnava temples in Nepal in Muktinath also and many a place from where Sri Vaish-navite literature is published in Nepali and Sanskrit, (Mahe-ndra Nagar, Viratnagar, Naval Parasi etc.)

In U. P. many Sri Vaishnava Research Centres are functioning in Kāshi and Allahabad.

In Banares (Kashi) there are (1) Lakshmi Narayan temple, a very neat and beautiful Sri Vaishnava temple, in Rajghāt (2) Nrisimha temple in Prahalād Ghāt (3) Sri Lakshmi Venkatesh Temple in Tripura Bhairavi Ghat, all recently established within 50 or 60 years and typical of the cleanliness characteristic of Tamilnāḍu Sri Vaishnavite temples in spite of the not so clean surroundings in Kashi. There is also a Tōtādri Mutt (Konia Rajghat-Benares). Besides there are institutes dedicated to the study of Ramanuja such as—

- 1) Rāmānuja Kota - Sri Ramachari Sanskrit Vidyalaya.
- 2) Rāmānuja Sanskrit Vidyalaya (Misra Pokhra- Benares).
- 3) Rāmānuja Darshan Mahā Vidyalaya Tripura Bhairavi Ghat.
- 4) Assi Bhāgawata Vidyalaya & Mutt. (Assi)
- 5) There is also a Rāmānuja department in the Sri Sampurnanand Sanskrit University, Jagatgunj (Kashi).

In the mutts we see many Hindi speaking Sri Vaishnavas who have been given different names after Diksha. In a family one member alone may be a convert to Sri Vaishnava - of his own inclination - while the rest pursue their own vocations. Some young ardent advotee - scholars work for their doctorates in Rāmānuja's philosophy.

In Orissa, the Guru Parampara and other daily recitations are written in Sanskrit though Alavandar Stotram and few other works were translated in Oriya language.

Sri Vaishnavism has imprinted an integrated image of the Indian religion and philosophy in north Indian Sri Vaishnavities.

As a mark of this identity in the cultural level also one can here typical Sri Vaishnava names like Goda, Andal, Ranganayaki etc. among the womenfolk of Rajasthan, Bihar, and Nepal and those of Ranganatha, Ramanuja, Bhashyam etc. among the menfolk.

Adopting strict vegetarianism is the first and foremost step taken by a Sri Vaishnava convert whether in Bengal, Bihar or Nepal. (The term 'Vaishnava Bhojan' in north refers to pure vegetarian food, while it is 'Saiva' bhojan in Tamilnadu.) Observing strict 'ritualistic' cleanliness in matters of dress, eating places, and eatables is another Sri vaishnava feature. Celebrations of Hindu festivals like the holy birthdays, and marriages of Gods and Goddess are held Sri Vaishnavas all over India according to the Southern calender, regardless of their own different regional traditions. Ofcourse regional additions like Radhashtami, Sri Panchami etc. (not known in Tamilnadu) are also included where necessary.

Vaikuntotsava conducted as the final funeral ritual in honour of a parent or an elderly revered person, which is observed among the Sri Vaishnavites of Rajasthan and U. P. is a typical example of Sri Vaishnava impact.

As already mentioned the Sri Vaishnava Divya desas in the north celebrate all the religious festivals observed in their southern counterparts. Brahmotsava being the most important of them.

To sum up, "the cumulative effect of the efforts made by different Shree Vaishava Acharisy as mentioned above is that Shree Vaishnavism has been firmly placed in the soil of North India and become a manifest factor during the 19th century and the pace has been further accelerated during the present century. The picture that we got at the end of the 19th century was the establishment of colonies of Shree Vaishnavas in different states of North India. Puri and Cuttack in Orissa, Calcutta and its suburbs, Gadibero, Midnapur, Jessore and Murshidabad in Bengal; Buxar, Arrah, Patna, Gaya in Bihar; Vrindavan, Madhura Varanasi, Ayodhya, Prayag, Chitrakut, Bairelly, Hrishikesh, Joshimath in U. P., Biyani and Amritasar in Punjab; Puskar, Maulasar, Deedwana, Jodhpur in Rajputana; Solapur, Dwaraka, Ahmedabad in Saurashtra and Bombay; Indore, Raichur in Central Provinces and in many other places not specifically mentioned. With these spiritual outposts at different corners of North India firmly established at the close of the last century, great leap forward has been made in the present century by annexation of new areas in the remote villages and urban cities even in the neighbouring country like Nepal where Shree Vaishnavas are now an accountable factor."*

A detailed study of the places where Sri Vaishnavism has taken roots in North India, its impact on the local people in their social, religious and literary activities and the Tamil Sri Vaishnava migrants who have settled in different states, would all give an insight into the interesting aspect of history that is sharpening itself.
